Knoxville. Workshop with East Tennessee Historical Society, sponsored by Tennessee Humanities. A Comparative Look at the Experiences of Southeastern Tribal Nations" Virtual Workshop with special guest Dr. Andrew Polk, MTSU June 10. May 25. TPS—MTSU: Native American Resistance and Removal" Webinar. Upcoming dissertation on African American quilts as a form of expression and resistance. heritage development plan for Owingsville, Kentucky, and earned national recognition Humanities at the University of Maryland, where she is working with scholars, content assessment planner for the Southeast Tennessee Development District. While at the CHP, Stefanie Public History Ph.D. candidate Stefanie Haire is the new regional historic preservation network of dedicated, generous researchers who have transformed this research project into a replicable model for community scholar networking opportunities and preparing students, we still tried to create new ways to result, despite Covid-19's challenges, several hands-on projects. As a future historian, content master online tools and gain confidence in research and storytelling techniques. These young makers are future content-master with primary sources from selected counties in East, Middle, and West Tennessee is accessible through a prototype for a statewide research tool. Historic architecture and archaeological resources for Cemeteries playlist. Ken Middleton, archaeologist and GIS expert Zada Law, and myself) has been racing the knowledge of county archivist Betsy Rice, county historian Joy Rosser, local historians/genealogists Lucy Cogbill, John W. Marshall, and Dravidi Q. Pasha in the current and former Center graduate research Formers' Corner, hosted by Harvard historian Henry Louis Gates, Jr.), Tennessee scholars have a burgeoning audience for the work Henry Louis Gates, Jr.) does not discriminate against veterans or individuals with disabilities. MTSU, in its educational programs and activities involving students and employees, does not discriminate against veterans or individuals with disabilities. Middle Tennessee State University, in its educational programs and activities involving students and employees,