

PLOWSHARES AND SWORDS

TENNESSEE FARM FAMILIES TELL CIVIL WAR STORIES

A Publication of the Center for Historic Preservation at Middle Tennessee State University

During the Civil War, the "Hard Hand of War" fell on farm families across Tennessee. Read the compelling stories of farmers, Union and Confederate, who coped with the challenges and changes of the wartime and afterwards. For 150 years, generations have preserved oral traditions, documents, photographs, buildings, and the places that tell about their ancestors – those who experienced the reality of the home front during the war and afterwards as rebuilding began, and those who were slaves who made the transition to freedom. Century Farms and other historic farms, listed in the National Register of Historic Places, were selected because of their accounts of survival during this period. Over 100 farms from 56 counties are represented.

The full-length book with many period images is now available. This publication has been limited to a printing of 1000 copies.

The price is $50.00 plus shipping and handling - $55.00

All proceeds from the sale of this book will go to the MTSU Foundation to support the ongoing work of the Center for Historic Preservation across Tennessee.
